

OCTOBER 30, 2021

Dear New Brunswickers,

October 29 was a big day for all of us. The immense support you showed for front-line workers made all the difference for the thousands of picketers throughout our province. It increases our resolve to continue the fight for fair wages for all, for dignity and respect for the ordinary worker.

Today is the second day of the strike, and thousands more will be joining us on the lines.

- To family and colleagues who took their breaks to stand on the line with us yesterday: thank you.
- To the truckers, motorists, pedestrians, and drivers who proudly made us hear their support: thank you.
- To the small business owners who brought us coffee to keep us warm: thank you.
- To the parents who brought over their costumed children on the line for Halloween treats: thank you.
- To the many citizens who continue to stop by our headquarters with donations: thank you.

All New Brunswickers are welcome to stand with us. Bring your children in costume, as most CUPE picket lines will have members giving out goodies and Halloween treats throughout this weekend.

Come talk to workers, show up at a regional strike headquarters to offer your help, your kind words of support, your time or a few dollars for the strike fund. This might not sound like much, but it does make a big difference.

With your support, we are confident the premier and his cabinet will hear our voices and our call for fairness and respect.
